Senior Designer

At In-Vogue we firmly believe a company is only as good as its staff. That's why we focus so much attention on getting the right people, and retaining them.

Right now we're looking for a passionate, creative thinking designer with flair and ability to join our team. Someone who can make a real contribution to a client's new home.

We can promise you a great work environment - we're a big builder with a small team focus - and an exciting range of single and two storey product to work with. An excellent remuneration package comes with the position.

You'll need a good construction knowledge of single and two-storey homes, great presentation skills and a desire to see your ideas through to completion. Archicad experience is essential.
